

2013

Suitable Mountain Caribou Habitat in the Hart Range

The Hart Range, in southeastern British Columbia, supports a decreasing population of Mountain Caribou. The Caribou Habitat Suitability Map was created by a Multi-Criteria Evaluation. Criteria taken into account included forestry roads, railroads, highways, land use, terrain slope and elevation, as well as biogeoclimate (BEC) zone within the study area.

Legend

Equal Analysis

Shoshana Herold and Sarah McLaughlin
Data sources: DataBC and Commission for Environmental Cooperation
BC Albers Projection
December 2013
GEOB 370